

District of Columbia Alcoholic Beverage Regulation Administration Compliance Training for ABC Licensees

The Alcoholic Beverage Regulation Administration's (ABRA) is holding the sixth in a series of specialized trainings for ABC license holders in the District of Columbia. You are strongly encouraged to attend the training!

These trainings are specifically designed to help licensees learn techniques to properly ask for ID from patrons, how to spot fake IDs, and to inform licensees about ABRA's compliance check activities.

Licensees will also learn about how ABRA conducts regulatory inspections and how you can be in compliance with the laws and regulations of the District.

Information will also be provided on the license protest process, voluntary/cooperative agreements, and how licensees can navigate the adjudicatory processes of the ABC Board.

We think you will find this training session very useful. If you have received the training previously, please send other employees to attend this time.

Compliance with District laws and regulations is very important, and "I didn't know" is never an acceptable response. Please come join us for what will be an informative and helpful training session that will give you tools to stay in compliance.

Please note the training sessions listed below which will have Korean or Spanish interpreter services provided!
